

Steve & Lorraine Box – Sunday 13th September

From Lorraine:

'As we were praying for you guys this morning I just saw a host of angels that had been assigned to this house. I saw that host of angels clearing a pathway, making straight for the way of the Lord. I feel like there is a call the Father is making out to you as a company of believers, as a family, in this region. It's not by chance where you are geographically located. There is a pathway being cleared for you by an angelic host and the Father is saying 'Now is the time for you to partner with that angelic host' so that you actually access all that God has given to you as a company of believers to accomplish. It is time to resound, to sound again, to re-sound here on the earth who you are, the sound that God has given you. The worship team that's really for you to unpack, all of you worshippers.

I kept seeing a complete open heaven. Literally this was an opening (pointing at the roof space in the main worship area). This was not wooded in. It was completely open. God wants you to remember that where God has you, where he's placed you, who he's called you to be, you need to know you have an open heaven. You have an open heaven. He said start living with a 'yes'.

You need to start seeing yourselves in a bigger building because you need room down here in the front to worship. Let it be the river of God.

Following prophecy over Isaac:

This morning I heard the word – resound. But when I heard the word resound immediately following I heard re-sound. I pondered on it for a few moments, I looked it up in the dictionary. I wanted to know what the word really technically meant: to fill a place with sound; be loud enough to echo. That's what God is saying over you as a house. It's time to resound. It's time for you guys to start resounding the sound of heaven. There is an echo that you are meant to create as you bring heaven's sound here on earth. You are meant to re-sound. I had a word for you a couple of months ago about singing a new song. I feel like God is doing something so huge here with regards to David's tabernacle, worship, that non-stop worship. The fact that you've got these records here (mounted on the wall) I think is a prophetic reminder and a statement to you. Records when they first came out, they represent an era when sound was released...a song that had been sung, a song that had been created, was reproduced. So do you see the echo. I feel like God has been generating something in this house that you are meant to resound or echo.
